BACKGROUND

The project HAND in HAND is focusing on the importance of social, emotional and intercultural competencies (SEI competencies) for building inclusive societies and to prevent segregation and discriminative bullying, by enhancing SEI competencies of all students and school staff (the whole school approach) including schools with large proportions of migrant and refugee students.

According to scientific evidence, students' enhanced SEI skills can result in several positive outcomes:

- better educational outcomes,
- better mental health,
- decreased numbers of early school leavers, improvement in prosocial behavior,
- decrease of physical aggression, and
- positive self-image (Bierman, Nix, Greenberg, Blair & Domitrovich, 2008; Durlak et al., 2011; Greenberg, 2006; Sklad et al., 2012; Zins, Weissberg, Wang, & Walberg, 2004).

On the other hand enhanced SEI skills among school staff are of vital importance for:

- the development of students' social and emotional competences (Schonert-Reichl et al., 2015),
- students' behavioural and academic achievement (Valiente, Lemery-Chalfant, Swanson, & Reiser, 2008), and
- school staff's own well-being (Jennings & Greenberg, 2009).

THE PROJECT

HAND in HAND: Social and Emotional Skills for Tolerant and Non-discriminative Societies (A Whole School Approach)

A collaborative EU based policy experimentation project will create and apply an innovative HAND in HAND program for SEI competencies development for students and school staff that will be tested using an experimental design with control groups across four EU countries (Slovenia, Croatia, Germany, Sweden). So far, SEI competences are not explicitly included in national educational systems across Europe (OECD, 2015) and thus, this program brings novelty and scientific relevance to the field.
