

Fashion Industry Target Consultation

Europe and North America Regional Workshop

Formally launched at COP27 in November 2022, the Fashion Industry Target Consultation (FITC) is led by the Global Fashion Agenda (GFA) and the UN Environment Programme (UNEP) and aims to identify and converge existing industry aligned targets (and formulate new targets where they are currently missing) according to the five priorities of the Fashion CEO Agenda: Respectful & Secure Work Environments, Better Wage Systems, Resource Stewardship, Smart Material Choices, and Circular Systems. The consultation will help understand regional impacts in formulating these targets, and ensuring there are no tradeoffs, while also ensuring environmental and social protections in the transition to a net-positive fashion industry. UNEP's upcoming report, Sustainability and Circularity in the Textile Value Chain: A global roadmap, sets out the priorities and actions all key stakeholders can take towards this transformation, based on UNEP's existing work in this area.

Together, GFA and UNEP are inviting stakeholders and partners from across the global textile value chain to share their views on the proposed targets through the FITC via an online survey and regional workshops. The FITC will help provide clarity and drive accountability for a range of consistent, measurable, monitored and complete goals, so that the industry is able to understand the current state of progress, as well as the areas that must be focused on to accelerate impact, and the timeframe to do so.

A short video about FTIC is available here.

Regional consultation process:

Each region has a different relationship with the textile value chain, and a global set of targets and monitoring must incorporate this to ensure that there are no tradeoffs, while also ensuring environmental and social protections.

Together GFA, and UNEP through the Global Opportunities for Sustainable Development Goals \(GO4SDGs\) initiative, is hosting a regional consultation workshop to collect feedback on the proposed targets, as well as localized impacts, issues, contexts and challenges. The session is designed to be 2.5 hours long, with breakout groups and plenary sessions to allow adequate collection of insights.

During the workshop, value chain stakeholders from the region, including brands, retailers, NGOs, manufacturers, SMEs, data providers, innovators, intergovernmental organisations, policy makers, and more, will be facilitated to share their insights on the proposed targets, and the questions:

- Does this set of targets capture the actions needed?
- Is the target ambition level adequate?
- What tools and support are required to take progressive action towards the targets?
